PROCEEDINGS OF THE N. Y. LEGISLATURE.

SANGUINARY RAILROAD RIOT. &c., &c., &c.

Harrisburg, Pa.

HARRISBURG, April 1, 1851. The Hon. Daniel Webster arrived here this afternoon, and is at present the guest of the State. He was met at the depet by a large concourse of citizens, and escorted to his quarters at Heer's Hotel.

The whole of the House of Representatives was crowded to excess this evening, by a brilliant, dazzling, and fashiometic audience. The scats of members were en-tirely occupied by ladies, and all the beauty of Harrisburg was present on the occasion.

At half-past soren o'clock Mr. Webster entered the hall amid wild and enthusiastic applause, supported by brief and complimentary remarks:—

Mr. Webster—In behalf of the constituted authorities of the State, and at their request, and in the name of the citizens of Pennsylvania here present, I most choerfully istinguished and lively trait in the character of the heautiful property of our national character, it has been

She is vast in extent, abundant in wealth and secting to render herself respectable in the eyes true (that she has been governed by local prejudition; the is on the line which divides the two porsiveys to do her duty to both. I admire Pennsylvania for the mederation and firmness, the good sense and natriction, which have animated her in the disthere of her obligations in view of the question so well estimated to disturb the general political harmony. Near Georgica has done me more than justice in what I entered ablie life quite too long for myself, and per-baps for my family, but I assert for myself one merit great State of Pennsylvania; and it is the morit of enbracing the country, and the whole country. in what I have said or done, in one public station or another, in my general political career is deed sould not have been an insignificant State under Pennsylvania induct could not have been an insignificant State under any accountationes, if the half remoined great in her research in his root of the third of the pennsylvania in the the least of the third of the pennsylvania in her pennsylvania. If, described and is should been her with respect. What, after all would have been the state of fromeybrania if, described and is should be the other States of the Union, copy, and would have been with her mineral resources, with an power to develop them with her mineral resources with an operation of develop them with the mineral resources with an operation of develop them with the mineral resources. What would she have been, with her mineral resources with an operation of develop them with the third of the country and has a market them in product and if they are it has considered in the country as their country, and has made the other of Fernanylvania what he now is, and what I appelled it for country as their country, and has made the other of Fernanylvania what he now is, and what I appelled by the country as their country, and has made the other of the country as their resources, the Key-stoke of the arch of the Union.

It is had happened to me to have been before this associating in this place, one year ago to-day—on the first distribution of the country of all parties, calculated that occurrence of first of all parties, calculated to adjust local disvences, and actife the agitating questions of the century. It is time that we should feel kindly one towards another—to feel that we are an people—have on intent, one character, one liberay, and one decting, I be re a humilie but hence part in the procurement of that adjustment calabilished by the last Congress, which if not verything that the ways profit and one decting, I be read a humilie but hence to give a feel with a said of the country—it is that the hade proposed of the calabilished first variation made a constitution of the country—a condition of the contribution of the cou

I do not contemplate what might happen to Pennsylvania when separated from her neighbors—she may stand alone—nor will it be forced upon her except by the reality of fact. I look forward to a long existence of general prosperity and of republican liberty. For myself, I believe that ages and ages hence, these United States will be free and republican still, making constant progress in general confidence, respect, and prosperity. It will be to me the greatest solace of my life to be able to say, when my career on earth may end, that I have done something, though little, towards preserving the glorious constitution of my country.

Mr. Webster resumed his seat amid tumultuous applause, the andience being electrified by his cloquent address.

After spending some time in exchanging congratulations with the members of the Legislature and the ladies who had listened to him. Mr. Webster retired. He partock of a supper given to him by the citizens of Harrisburg, at 10 o clock.

Air. Diamers nourcesco the Senate. He reviewed the history of the road; its struggles from one trouble to another; the resolution and energy of its directors; their confidence that whoever opposed the good sense of the people should see them preserved; the certainty of its near completion, and its great cost. He said that this was a new attempt to pu down the road, and he knew it could not succeed.

Mr. Jonshaos followed, urging the justice of the provision of the boll, as establishing equal and exact justice to all parts of the State, in view of the people. He observed that their roads, in the centre of the State, were heavily taxed with tonic.

Mil. Stateges opposed the bill. There was a time when these who had ventured their money in this road were locked upon as financial lunaties and were decided on the exchange as men without judgment. Calmiy and perreveringly, the good men and true, who had it in charge new, had purched it on till the very next month its and witness its completion. THE INTEREST ON NOWEY.

The bill in relation to the interest on money was concluded. It provides that where there is no contract or neutrone for the payment of money, with interest, at a greater rate of interest than is allowed by the preceding cection, it shad be thereby rendered void; but whenever, in any action brought on such contract or assurance, it shall appear, upon a special answer to the complaint being hands to that effect, that a greater rate of interest his born directly of indirectly reserved, taken, or received, than is allowed by law, inc defendant shall receive his born directly of indirectly reserved, taken, or received, than is allowed by law, inc defendant shall received to taken, and the plaintiff shall have judgment for the balance only which shall remain due after deducting the whole amount of salu interest.

Mr. Joseans savecated the bill at length. The present haw was a provious to dishonor, and it was an encouragement held out by the laws for men to deliberately fastly their undertakings. It was time that the State of New York should clines such a law from the statule book.

this proposition was debated by Messrs Babcock, schoolinaker, and others.

Mr. Francherin said, in debate, that he believed the state of New York would lose, by the State of California, ever one hundred militans of donars. If the laws relating to the interest on money were wisely framed in this Sinte, money would how into her, because our people wice more energicine, and because they were more intelligent. It was a better field for enterprise.

No question was taken, and the Senate adjourned.

ALBANY, April 1, 1851.

This day being set apart for the third reading of bills, be following were passed, unless otherwise noted:— An act to amend the set relative to the District At-

Mr. Township moved to take the motion from the alie, to reconsider the rote on the final passage of the till providing for the discharge of insolvent debtorsstried. The question being on the motion to reconsider Mr. Townsend called for the reading of the bill. He then proceeded to explain the objects of the bill, and advocatd its passage, as in some d gree it relieves the present cat of much unnecessary stringency. Mr. T. believed that it was perfectly right and proper that a debter hould have the privilege of preferring creditors, as he d d not think it was demanded by justice that an unforded not think it was demanded by justice that an university of the life, merely to gratify the feelings of one person who might be prejudited against a debtor. If a man to intertunise in his business, and having acted honestly in his dealings with his creditors, it was certainly very proper that he should be discharged from his burdens upon the application of two-thirds of his creditors. He regested that he considered the bill esignisted to work most salutarily in relieving the embarrassments of unfortunate debtors.

Mr. Macomers wished to withdraw his opposition to the bill after hearing the explanation of his colleague, and he desired to say to any gentleman with whom he had conversed on the subject, that he was in favor of the bill.

Mr. Woester advocated a motion to reconsider, and discussed the merits of the bill at some length. He deemed it a very necessary enactment, in protecting the intertess of unfortunate debtors. He hoped the bill night receive the unanimous support of the House.

The motion to reconsider was carried by a yes 83. The bill then passed by ayes 85, mays 1.

Mr. O. Allexs moved to take from the table the bill for the appointment of an agent to represent the State of New York at the World's Fair, in 1851. Carried.

The question being on concurring with the Senate on amendments made to the bill, it was decided in the affirmative—ayes 76, mays 1.

Sur Fever and Small Pox.—Owing to the want of stringency in enforcing the laws of quarantine, passed hot session, a great number of cases of ship fever and of small pox have recently come up to the city; and after spreading the contagion here, it has been found necessary to send them back again to the Marino Hospital, Staten Island, where they ought to have been sent in the first instance. Ship fever has been fearfully on the increase of late, owing to the crowded state of the emigrant ships—the want of proper ventilation, and the want of sufficient food or the unwholecome character of the food supplied. Additional assistant physicians have been found necessary at the Marine Hospital, besides transferring a number of such patients as could be removed to Ward's Island.
